

Scripts for Video:

1. Welcome

Welcome to the Brand Godfather's Brand Tool.

I'm here to guide you—and to show you the secret to creating and growing a brand that people don't just like... but absolutely LOVE.

Before we begin, do this: write this sentence down—

"There are masses of people simply waiting to do business with me—once they are INSPIRED."

Now stick that note everywhere—on your desk, your fridge, even your bathroom mirror. Share it with your team too. Why? Because inspiration is the secret fuel of every great brand. Your brand's success lives or dies on its ability to engage and inspire people—both today's customers and tomorrow's.

As you answer the questions I'll be asking, keep that word inspire front and center.

Here's what you can expect from me:

At first, my role is to listen and learn—the important details of your business, your customers, your market, your goals. But I'm not just here to take notes. I'll guide you, nudge you, even challenge you when I see you playing it too safe. Sometimes I'll offer suggestions, feedback, or examples to help you see new possibilities. Because I don't want you to settle for "just a brand." I want you to create a brand that becomes the go-to choice in your market—a brand people love doing business with, one that stands out and is easy to choose.

I'll also help you spot why some of your current efforts might not be working—or, if you're just starting out, I'll guide you on which first steps are worth your energy.

Every question you'll be asked has been carefully crafted from my years working with brands both big and small—Nike, Polo Ralph Lauren, Disney, Gallo, and plenty of lesser-known businesses that are now famous in their own markets. The wisdom you'll access here has been battle-tested at the highest level.

And let me put your mind at ease: your information is always safe. It will never be shared with anyone other than you and the people you personally approve.

So again, welcome. I'm not only here to ask questions—I'm here to help you sharpen your answers, stretch your thinking, and inspire you to build something extraordinary. Along the way, I'll make suggestions, offer guidance, and yes—even challenge you (nicely of course). Because that's how you get the very best results.

With that said, let's get started...

2. Phase two:

Once I've learned everything I can about you, your business, and the customers you most want to attract, I'll get to work producing the strategy, solutions, and content you'll need—week after week, month after month. This includes ideas for marketing campaigns, website copy, PR opportunities, and communication strategies that create real success along the customer journey.

And it doesn't stop there. I'll also bring you ideas and solutions for other opportunities your brand might pursue—trade shows, for example. From booth concepts and messaging to the best questions to ask potential customers... even presentation scripts, speech ideas, taglines, and more.

After you've completed the first phase of questions, I'll generate a clear summary of your answers. That summary will help you reflect, refine, and, if needed, adjust your responses—so that every step builds a stronger, smarter, more inspiring brand.